

Graduate Students for Diversity in Science (GSDS) is a student-run organization dedicated to promoting diversity & inclusion in graduate life at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

- Dow Distinguished Lecture Series
 - “Diversity in Science: Why it matters and How You Can Help”
 - “The World Needs All Kinds of Minds”
- Mentorship and outreach with California State University: on-site and reverse site visits
- Diversity Panels in STEM department recruitment + orientation events .

Winter 2017–Dow Distinguished Lecturer Temple Grandin speaking to a packed room.

UCSB graduate & California State University students mingling during lunch

